EDUCATION CHANGEMAKERS COHORT I CALL FOR APPLICATIONS 25 March 2024 YALI REGIONAL LEADERSHIP CENTER EAST AFRICA

We are excited to announce the launch of the fourth cohort of the Education Changemakers programme, scheduled for Monday, June 10, 2024. In collaboration with the Trevor Noah Foundation (TNF), this initiative aims to empower young African leaders within the education sector with advanced skills, resources, and tools necessary for driving positive change.

The programme will bring together eighty dynamic leaders from 14 target countries across East and Central Africa for four weeks of immersive and collaborative leadership training. Participants will engage in interactive learning sessions, site visits, and classroom experiences focusing on foundational leadership skills.

We are specifically seeking applicants who are already driving transformation in the education sector through innovative approaches and ideas. This programme offers a unique opportunity for these change agents to further enhance their skills and knowledge.

YALI Regional Leadership Center East Africa (YALI RLC-EA) is supported by United States Agency for International Development (USAID) and implemented by Kenyatta University. The programme has successfully trained over 5,300 young African leaders from 14 countries in East and Central Africa since 2015.

The Trevor Noah Foundation (TNF), supported by the Oak Foundation, is dedicated to equipping underserved youth in Africa with the necessary educational foundation and opportunities to become resilient future leaders. TNF's interventions focus on learner skills development, teacher training and support, and infrastructure improvement to ensure young people have viable learning options post-matric.

We invite all young leaders passionate about driving change in the education sector to apply via the link provided below.
